A Call for Applications for the
Tom Mullen Ministry of Writing Fellowship

Application Deadline: October 15, 2018

The Earlham School of Religion is currently accepting applications for the Tom Mullen Ministry of Writing Fellowship for the 2018-2019 academic year.

The recipient of the fellowship will spend the spring session (January-May) at ESR working on a publishable manuscript while attending a Ministry of Writing class.

The fellowship awards $2,500 to cover the tuition or audit fee for one class. Any amount left over will be provided to the recipient for living expenses. Tuition is $1,749; the audit fee is $350. See details below for other fees covered by the fellowship award.

You need not be a current ESR student to apply, but you do have to attend a writing class on campus.

Details on recipient responsibilities, other fellowship provisions, and the application are on the next two pages.

Please submit your application and details of your writing project via email by October 15, 2018, to Jonelle Ellis at ellisjo1@earlham.edu
